You Can't Believe the Census Records!

Dick Eastman · June 1, 2015

Census records are amongst the primary tools of genealogists. Even so, those of us who have been reading them for a while can tell you that the records are not as reliable as we would wish. I am still trying to find great-great-granddad in the 1850 census although he appears hale and hearty in the enumerations of 1840, 1860, 1870 and 1880. His absence in 1850 is still unexplained. Still, my quandary is minor compared to some others. For instance, the 1990 census is thought to have missed one native American in eight. Thousands of others – perhaps millions – have been missed in census records taken over the past two centuries.

America's first census was carried out in 1790, and it was groundbreaking in many ways. It was the first to be mandated in any country's constitution. It also caused America's first presidential veto when George Washington, on the advice of Thomas Jefferson, disagreed with legislation defining how this "apportionment" was to be carried out. Washington's primary objection to the proposed amendment was that "there is no one proportion or divisor which, applied to the respective numbers of the States, will yield the number and allotment of representatives proposed by the Bill." It is interesting to note that today's fixed allocation of 435 seats also does not pass the test established by President Washington.

An article from 2007 in The Economist compares the U.S. Census with similar efforts in other countries. It states that In 1634 Governor John Winthrop of the Massachusetts Bay Colony estimated the local population rather than counting it exactly.

When a Census Bill was debated in Britain in 1753, Matthew Ridley, the member of Parliament (MP) for Newcastle, gave a speech saying that there was among the people "such a violent spirit of opposition to this Bill, that if it be passed into a law, there is a great reason to fear, they will in many places oppose the execution of it in riotous manner."

The same article also states, "Where government is oppressive, people want to keep out of censuses, lest information they provide is misused. Where government provides, people want to be in censuses, and to boost their numbers, in order to claim a larger share of the goodies."

The Nazis used population records to round up Jews into concentration camps. As a result, Germans are still reluctant to be counted. In 1936 Stalin told his officials that the following year's census would find a total population of 170 million—a figure that did not account for his slaughter of millions in famines and purges. The enumerators (census takers) found only 162 million people and revealed other unwelcome facts, including that nearly half the population of his supposedly atheist country was religious. With this news Stalin denounced the count as a "wrecker's census" and had the census takers either im-

President's Message

Dear Friends,

I can't believe how quickly the years seem to be passing me by. I've enjoyed nearly every work day but still looked forward to retiring someday. That someday is now less than a month away; a scary thought for me, and probably an even scarier thought for my wife.

I don't know for certain what activities will fill my days after work, but I suspect family history research will be a big part of them. You may remember a talk I shared five years ago on "Using Facebook for Researching Your Family History." Facebook has been one of my favorite resources for staying connected with aunts, uncles, cousins and friends. The little notes, shared pictures, and occasional announcements, have all added to today's family record. But as I said back then Facebook has greater potential as a tool for genealogical research and in my upcoming retirement I hope to take advantage of those tools.

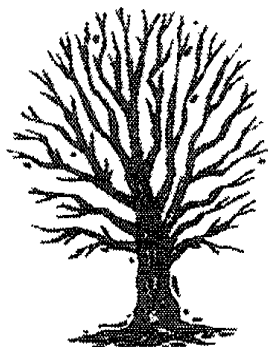

Shortly after that talk, the Marshfield Area Genealogy Group created its own Facebook group. The group has 48 members now, and no, not all of our genealogy group members are members of the Facebook group. Are you a member? Maybe you should be. Please consider this your invitation to join.

What are the advantages to belonging to a Facebook group for a genealogical society? For local residents there are notifications of community, state or regional meetings and events. During the past week or so, our Facebook group also included announcements to free access for records over the July 4th weekend at Fold3, Ancestry.com, and the New England Historical and Genealogical Society. There was a series of lectures (more than seven hours) recorded at the recent Global Family Reunion posted for everyone's benefit. For our out of town members, its an opportunity to connect with unknown local records, family members, and other family history researchers willing to share their time and talents to help them overcome genealogical brick walls.

There are Facebook Pages and Groups about genealogical research being created nearly every day. Each one is focused on a specific location, ethnic group or special interest. For a list of 5,200 English-speaking Pages and Groups visit this url: <http://socialmediagenealogy.com/genealogy-on-facebook-list/> and visit the Marshfield Area Genealogy Group Facebook Group too at: https://www.facebook.com/?_rdr=p#!/groups/128666657174048/

The Marshfield Facebook Group now features a photo of a past picnic at Al and Pat Breden's home. Always a nice event, I hope to see you there on July 23rd. Details will be shared on our Facebook group and by email. Best wishes with all your genealogical pursuits.

Civics (History and Government) Questions for the Naturalization Test

The 100 civics (history and government) questions and answers for the naturalization test are listed below.

The civics test is an oral test and the USCIS Officer will ask the applicant up to 10 of the 100 civics questions. An applicant must answer 6 out of 10 questions correctly to pass the civics portion of the naturalization test.

On the naturalization test, some answers may change because of elections or appointments. As you study for the test, make sure that you know the most current answers to these questions.

Answer these questions with the name of the official who is serving at the time of your eligibility interview with USCIS. The USCIS Officer will not accept an incorrect answer.

Although USCIS is aware that there may be additional correct answers to the 100 civics questions, applicants are encouraged to respond to the civics questions using the answers provided below.

Book Review: Elements of Genealogical Analysis

Dick Eastman's Blog · April 22, 2015

The following book review was written by Bobbi King:

Elements of Genealogical Analysis

By Robert Charles Anderson

New England Historic Genealogical Society. 2014. 168 pages.

Robert Charles Anderson secured his place in the pantheon of genealogical greats when he became Director of the Great Migration Study Project. Supported by the New England Historic Genealogical Society, the published volumes titled the Great Migration Series represent a set of colonial biographies that anchors New England research. His Santa-Claus beard belies a suffers-no-fools independence and an intellect that his admirers immediately pronounce as “genius.” The American Society of Genealogists, limited to a lifetime membership of fifty Fellows, received Mr. Anderson as one of its own in 1978.

Mr. Anderson discovered his own New England roots some forty years ago. His investigations broadened beyond his own family to encompass the biographies of the New England colonists. The Migration Project subsequently issued:

The Great Migration Begins: Immigrants to New England, 1620-1633; biographies, genealogies and histories of over nine hundred New England families who settled in New England prior to the end of 1633.

The Great Migration: Immigrants to New England 1634-1635; seven volumes of immigrant histories, each volume profiling more than two hundred immigrants and families.

The Pilgrim Migration: Immigrants to Plymouth Colony, 1620-1633; sketches of families and individuals who settled in Plymouth Colony.

The Winthrop Fleet Massachusetts Bay Company Immigrants to New England 1629-1630; profiles of nearly seven hundred voyagers, led by John Winthrop, then Governor of the Massachusetts Bay Company.

Anyone can write a biography. But Mr. Anderson's rigor and methodology serve as template for us in resolving our research problems. Each genealogy has its own set of snags, obstacles, quandaries, and dilemmas, where suppositions will be wrong, maybe wrong, maybe right, likely right, or nearly-definitely right. The evidence provides the facts, but the veracity rests with us. Best to pick a mentor, imprint the philosophies and strategies, then go ahead and toil through the work, and cross your fingers that, in the end, your final interpretations will be nearly-definitely right.

Mr. Anderson prefaces the book with his two fundamental rules of genealogy: 1) All statements must be based only on accurately reported, carefully documented, and exhaustively analyzed records; and 2) You must have a sound, explicit reason for saying that any two individual records refer to the same person.

The remainder of the book guides us through these fundamentals. The first section, Analytic Tools, examines source analysis, record analysis, and linkage analysis. The second section, Problem-Solving Sequence, studies problem selection, problem analysis, data collection synthesis, and problem resolution.

Explanations are direct and clear, with numerous examples of genealogical problems, conclusions, and rationale supporting the conclusions. The appendixes include a Glossary, the Three Paradigms promoted as (Continued on pg. 7, “Analysis”)

One of Wisconsin's oldest residents, Mrs. Perkins was born Feb. 9, 1837, at Ledyard, Conn. Her father, a graduate of the first class at West Point, served in the War of 1812. His tattered uniform is on display in the State historical building at Des Moines, Iowa.

Leap Year Baby is Born Here Today; Dimes Pay Doctor

A Leap Year baby, who must wait until he is four years old to celebrate his first birthday, was born here today to Mr. and Mrs. George Drexler, 807 W. Arnold street.

The boy, who weighed 8 pounds, was born this morning and clearly established his claim as Marshfield's first Leap Year baby for 1940. He has not yet been named.

After the delivery, Mrs. Drexler handed the doctor an envelop containing the doctor's fee - all in dimes. She had saved the money, 10 cents at a time, and had the correct amount ready. The physician looked at the pile of dimes and elected not to count it. "I'll take your word," he declared, pocketing the heavy envelope.

Several other Marshfield and Central Wisconsin residents were celebrating birthdays today for their first time since Feb. 29, 1936.

Among them are four boys who are eight years old, but are only celebrating their second birthdays

They are: Robert Rhodes, 613 E. Fourth street; Jerome Budahn, 308 W. Cleveland street; Donald Seidel, Dorchester; and Calvin Bombard, Loyal.

Another "youngster" celebrating his sixth birthday is Walter "Buddy" Hoag, who stands several inches taller than 6 feet, and is 24 years old.

Observe 55th Anniversary - E. H. Wards Will Be Honored at Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Ward, 1408 S. Cedar street, who moved to Marshfield in September from Mauston, observed their 55th wedding anniversary at their home today. The Wards were married in Richland Center on March 1, 1885.

They have two living children, Oscar Ward, S. Cedar street and Thomas H. Ward, Janesville. One child, James, died in infancy. They also have three grandchildren, Ruth and Billy Ward, Marshfield, and Mrs. Earland Graves, Janesville, and one great grandchild, Evelyn Jean Graves, Janesville.

An anniversary dinner will be served tonight for the immediate relatives at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Ward, S. Cedar street.

Dohm Children Have Ten Grandparents

Ten grandparents - all living and all having last names beginning with 'D' provide the unusual story that Beverly Ann and Patsy Dohm, 2-year-old and 9-month-old draughts of Mr. and Mrs. LaVerne Dohm, Milwaukee and former Marshfield residents, may tell when they grow up. The grandparents include Mr. & Mrs. Arnold Dohm and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dix, Marshfield. The great grandparents, also from Marshfield, are Mr. & Mrs. Wendel David, Sr., Mr. & Mrs. William Dohm, Mrs. Anna Doll, and Mrs. William Dix, Sr.

TLC Reveals Celebrities for Summer 2015 Season of Who Do You Think You Are?

From Thomas MacEntee's Blog of 25 June 2015

Series returns Sunday, July 26 at 9/8c

The two-time Emmy nominated series WHO DO YOU THINK YOU ARE? returns this summer to share more fascinating stories, and shed light on surprising revelations, of the real life family history of celebrities. Executive Produced by Lisa Kudrow and Dan Bucatinsky, the new season premieres Sunday, July 26 at 9/8c.

The contributors featured in the upcoming season include:

- Tom Bergeron, who is aware of his French Canadian roots on his paternal side, but wants to know what brought his ancestors to North America. He goes as far back as his 10x great grandmother to find the answer.
- Bryan Cranston, who comes to discover an unfortunate pattern amongst the men in his family.
- Ginnifer Goodwin, who sets out to learn about her mysterious paternal great grandparents, whom her father, regrettably, does not know much about either.
- Alfre Woodard, who strives to find out more about the paternal side of her family, and explores how her surname came to be.

Additionally, TLC will air the U.S. premiere of J.K. Rowling's episode of the series, where the best-selling author sets off to uncover her maternal French roots. She finds that a family war story might not be what she thought when military records reveal a surprising twist.

Ancestry, the leading family history company, is teaming up again with TLC as a sponsor of the upcoming season. As part of the show sponsorship, Ancestry provides exhaustive family history research on each of the featured celebrities to help make discoveries possible and build out the story of each episode.

The series is produced for TLC by Shed Media and Isn't Entertainment, and is based on an original format created by Wall to Wall Media and Alex Graham. More information can be found at TLC.com/WDYTYA. 'Like' Who Do You Think You Are? on Facebook.com/WDYTYA and follow @WDYTYA on Twitter.
